Jose Garofalo Writer, Director, Producer

Jose Garofalo is a veteran filmmaker with extensive directing, writing and producing credits to his name. He has been in the film industry since 1978 in New York City and South Florida, working in various capacities on films such as "The Wanderers", "Wolfen", "Ghostbusters" and "Fort Apache-The Bronx". He's written and directed various feature films such as "Redemption", "The Wishing Stone", "Sacred Waters" and "That's Livin'" featuring some of the industry's well known talents such as Andy Garcia, Stephen Bauer, Rod Ball, Gloria Estefan, Arturo Sandoval and Al Sapienza among others.

Today, Mr. Garofalo is directing the docu-drama "City of Dreams". After completion, he will begin production on "Yakety Yak" the story of Carl Gardner and the legendary vocal group "The Coasters" which he is writing, producing and directing.

With many film projects at various stages, Mr. Garofalo still finds the time to teach the craft to aspiring filmmakers while working with the St. Lucie Film Society and the Treasure Coast International Film Festival to help develop the film industry in the area and promote independent filmmakers and their works of art

— Love —

And what is love? The world was Love is the soil, the budding tree
The ripened fruit, the voice blow
The waiting for the restless seas.

and love is and tuneful and smiling teary

and blinding tears, and dreams in vain and loneliness, and fear, and shame

Love makes the weakened one to stand Ambition
The morning dawns at her eye

SPEAK, SO YOU CAN SPEAK AGAIN brings the literature and personality of Zora Neale Hurston beautifully to life. You can pull out a crinkled, folded map of Eatonville; you can view Zora's early publications from the twenties, and even her handmade Christmas cards. You can also see the artist in the many worlds she graced—Florida, Harlem, and the Caribbean—from exclusive family photographs.

LUCY ANNE HURSTON, the niece of literary luminary and Harlem Renaissance writer Zora Neale Hurston, is the author of Speak, So You Can Speak Again: The Life of Zora Neale Hurston. Though only three years old when Zora died in relative obscurity, Lucy Anne Hurston has, over her lifetime, compiled a detailed knowledge of her aunt's life and work with a historian's observant eye.
